Reclamation: 'Extra' North County Water

By FRANK LaPIERRE

In seven months, the Daly City area will have some six million gallons of "extra" water daily.

With the affects of the current drought beginning to be felt in the North County, some officials are calling this additional water supply "a godsend."

Before the drought, water users were skeptical over the use of reclaimed wastewater (treated sewage) for anything except pouring into the nearby ocean.

The water shortage, and the threat that "things may get worse before they get better," has changed all that.

Consulting engineer Robert Bernicchi, former manager of the North San Mateo County Sanitation District plant in Daly City, and NSMCSD District Manager David Gehre happily note customers for the reclaimed water are now lining up.

So far, they admit, only the adjacent Olympic Golf Course has committed for one-million gallons of water a day.

"But, we expect others will soon follow suit. Frankly, we don't think we can provide enough of this water," Gehre said.

Directors of the district years ago envisioned a water reclamation plant as the only answer to solving the dilemma of what to do with treated wastewater,

'Brown Beautiful' Daly City 'Theme'

Daly City wants people to know that "brown is beautiful."

Green lawns are fine and all that, but during the duration of the current water shortage the City Council wants everyone to start admiring brown — as in dried grass and leaves.

City Manager David Rowe asked the council Monday night to back his program for water conservation in the city.

Rowe's recommendations follow a request from Kenneth R. Boyd, acting general manager of the San Francisco Water Department, to cut back 10 per cent in water use in the city because of the low water level of Hetch Hetchy reservoir, the main source of San Francisco's water supply.

Boyd noted that an overall 10 per cent cutback in water use is essential. He further pointed out that such "Other non-essential uses, such as irrigation . . . must be reduced to an absolute minimum."

San Francisco furnishes about 50 per cent of Daly City's water. The city provides the remaining water needs from wells.

The underground water level of these wells has been steadily dropping at the rate of six feet per year.

"There is no evidence at this time of an acceleration of decreasing the water table," Rowe informed the council.

However, continued drought in the area would have an effect on this underground water supply in the future, he said.

Rowe also wants a meeting soon of all operators drawing from the Daly City-Colma well field to discuss the matter.

Many Colma farms, cemeteries, and golf courses now use wells to provide water for irrigation.

Meanwhile, Rowe has ordered city personnel to immediately halt the washing down of sidewalks, steps and similar uses at city buildings.

In a letter being sent to Daly City residents, Mayor Anthony Giammona suggests several ways to conserve water, including bathing in two inches of water instead of a full tub.

And then re-using the water to wet down plants.

In a draft letter, proposed to be sent to various agencies such as school districts and the state Department of Transportation, City Engineer David K. Macabee notes that a 10 per cent reduction in overall water consumption must be met during the next 14 to 16 months.

"I do not believe that the residential users within Daly City are capable of this much reduction in water usage," the letter states.

The reason: Daly City homes have very small garden plots and limited landscaping.

"Our estimates indicate an expectancy level (in conservation) of less than a 5 per cent decrease from residential users," Macabee's letter indicates.

Because of this, Macabee asked for full cooperation from various public agencies in an attempt to cut back water useage by up to 80 per cent.

How will this dramatic cutback be brought about?

- No water to "sweep" streets.
- No automatic watering of grounds.
- Allowing cover plants to turn brown "for visual impact of your commitment to conservation."

Suit Threatened to Halt Proposed Center in Colma

By FRANK LaPIERRE

There are hundreds of thousands of property owners in Colma and a San Francisco attorney said Friday he will file a class action suit on their behalf if the Colma City Council tries to build a shopping center on El Camino Real.

In recent weeks, a Chicago-based developer has offered the Colma council a proposal to build a multi-million dollar shopping center, next to City Hall, on 10.6 acres of land now zoned for agricultural use.

George B. Nolte Associates of San Jose, on behalf of developer E. N. Maisel, filed an Environmental Impact Report with the city on the property last December.

Pacific Nurseries is now located on the site.

The attorney, James Paul Green, is the son of a former mayor of Daly City who died in an accident two years ago. Green's father is buried in Colma.

Green said he is angry with attempts by some members of the City Council to push through the shopping center project on El Camino Real.

"Several persons have already contacted me concerning this matter, asking I represent them in a class action suit if the need arises," Green said.

According to Green, every person that has bought a grave site in any of Colma's 13 cemeteries is a property owner under the law.

Asked how many persons are buried in Colma, Green answered, "Only God knows."

Latest estimates reveal that some 850,000 persons are buried in the cemetery town.

This means that hundreds of thousands of persons have "proprietary interest" in Colma, Green explained.

"In effect, a beneficiary owns not only the gravesite (property) but the remains," Green said.

"You might say, this class action suit is being filed on behalf of the silent majority — the dead," he said.

The law on class action suits explains that anyone may file such a suit on behalf of a "common or general interest."

Once filed, it would be up to a judge to decide if such an interest exists.

Another attorney, who asked to remain anonymous for now, noted that such a suit would not only represent the dead, but also living persons who own burial plots in Colma.

"I share the concern of those who do not want Colma's beautiful El Camino Real turned into a commer-

Colma Hearing

A public hearing will be held in Colma Wednesday, at 7:30 p.m. to discuss an Environmental Impact Report regarding construction of a shopping center next to City Hall.

The 10-acre site is now occupied by Pacific Nurseries and is zoned agricultural.

If a shopping center is to be built on the El Camino Real site, the council must accept the EIR and rezone the property "Commercial."

Some council members have expressed opposition to the proposed location of the shopping center, which, if built is expected to generate some $120,000 annually in tax revenues to Colma.

Recall Attempt Fails

There will not be a recall election in the coastal city of Pacifica.

The Pacifica Recall Committee failed to gather the necessary signatures by 5 p.m. Monday to place the recall of Mayor Janice Fulford and Councilmen Mark Savage and Sidney Lorvan on a ballot.

It was the first attempt in the city's 20-year-history to recall a council member.

In the last official act of the unsuccessful six-week campaign to collect the signatures of 25 per cent of the city's registered voters, the Recall Committee leaders went to City Hall at 4:15 p.m., Monday.

Chairwoman Betty Wilson and Kendall Anderson and Robert Griffith informed City Manager Clerk Don Weidner that they didn't have the required number of signatures and were officially ending their campaign

The committee and its more than 60 volunteers collected 2,878 signatures on petitions to recall Mrs. Fulford and slightly less on petitions against Savage and Lorvan.

Weidner said at least 3,788 signatures on petitions for each of the three council members was needed to force a recall election.

Mrs. Wilson said she will destroy the signed petitions, which had been circulating since Dec. 29.

"I think it was a good show," Mrs. Wilson said. "We handled ourselves in the proper manner. I don't think we disrupted the city — ever."

The Recall Committee volunteers tried for the last time over the weekend to acquire the needed signatures.

But by Monday morning they had contended that they wouldn't be able to meet the deadline.

Late last week there were hopes by the recall supporters they would be granted a seven-day extension to gather the signatures.

New legislation effective Jan. 1 allows recall organizers to begin circulating petitions the day formal statements by the recall targets are published in local newspapers.

'Escort Service' For the Imbiber Proposed in DC

Edward F. Hines Monday suggested the Daly City Council sanction an "escort service" as a means toward curbing drunk driving accidents.

Hines said he had no ulterior motives in suggesting the service, which might be provided by the Daly City Cab Company.

Nor does he stand to make any money on the program, if undertaken, Hines said.

"It's just my own personal pet project, you might say," Hines said.

Here's how the program would work:

A person discovers that he (or she) has perhaps imbibed too heavily and is afriad to drive his (or her) car.

If he drives and gets caught, he could get a citation for drunk driving — not an inexpensive matter.

Or, worse, he might slam into someone or something — a car, pedestrian or a fixed object — and end up in the hospital.

But he needs his car to get to work the next day.

Despite pleas from the bartender (who has cut them off from further participation in the Happy Hour), the less-than-sober driver heads for the family car and takes off.

Under Hines' plan, this motorist could call the cab company and two drivers would be sent out to bring him — and his car —safely home.

"Sounds like a great idea. We'll look at it," Mayor Anthony Giammona promised Hines.

Staff is expected to report back to the council next week with some written insight into the ambitious proposal.

If sanctioned by the city, it would be a "first" for any Peninsula city.

Helen Price Uses Concept

Woman's Idea for Saving Energy: Dollar Incentive

By JANET PARKER

The energy crisis in the East and the water shortage in the West are opening a lot of eyes, but dollar signs would open them wider, says Helen Price.

The Pacifica woman says Americans have had too much, too easily, too long.

The only thing that will keep residents of her city, and others, from destroying the world by pollution is a financial incentive, she said.

She's using that concept to fight the City Council on a front that hits just about every San Mateo County residents' pocketbook — monthly garbage collection bills.

"The almighty dollar means something," Miss Price said. "That's the way people think."

No matter how frequently or infrequently Pacificans leave garbage cans on the curb for pick-up, they are charged $3.75 a month, she said.

And that, the conservation-minded woman says, is unfair.

She contends that single people, working couples who are seldom home and senior citizens don't produce as much garbage as families and, therefore, shouldn't be charged as much.

The present system, she said, discourages recycling at the city's recycling center in Linda Mar.

As an avid recycler, she finds such a policy particuly discouraging in a period of resource shortages and fewer dumpsites.

"There are people who don't need a weekly collection," Miss Price said, "so why should they have to pay for it?" she then asked.

The slim, short-haired Pacifica woman is a speech and language therapist in the Laguna Salada School District, and, she explained, at a point in her life when she wants to take an active responsibility for her feelings.

She has been recycling her own refuse — newspapers, bottles, cans and paper bags — for three years. As a single person who works all day and often eats out, she seldom has enough garbage for a full can.

Angered at the billing policy as a result, Miss Price wrote to City Manager Don Weidner last year about what she says is an unfair system.

Weidner was sympathetic, she said, and suggested she approach the City Council.

She wrote the council a letter and asked for a chance to speak at a Jan. 24 council meeting

She told the council the present collection system is "a monopoly, obsolete, rigid and unfair."

"Reduced rates for less garbage output should be offered now," she stated. "Monetary encouragement could inspire a significant response in the conservation of recyclable products thus reducing our ecological shortages and scarce dumpsites."

The disposal of garbage has become a particular problem in Pacifica, because the Mussel Rock dumpsite it's been using for years will close in August.

Laws must be revised if

Bandit Slays Man in Restaurant

A 49-year-old Daly City man was shot once through the heart and killed when he refused to follow the instructions of an armed robber in a pizza restaurant early Saturday.

The victim was identified as Francis J. Sperisen Jr., 49, of 335 Coronada Ave., Apt. 307, Daly City, a diamond cutter and an art teacher with the Fremont School District. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Mary's Help Hospital.

Daly City Police Lt. Jim Barron said the bandit walked into the Westlake Pizza at 175 Southgate Ave., at about 1:15 a.m.

In what Lieutenant Barron said was not an unusual method of operation, the man sat down, had a beer, talked and waited for patrons to leave at closing time.

By 2:13, all but the bartender, whose name was not disclosed by police, and the victim had left the premises.

The suspect suddenly drew a 2-inch .22 caliber revolver, police said, ordered the bartender to get behind the bar and the victim to get down on the floor.

The bartender complied, but the victim refused. He started to walk toward the suspect, according to police, and was shot in the chest.

Police said the killer filled a paper bag with $500 in receipts from two cash registers in the shop and ran out the front door.

The bartender told police he did not recognize the gunman, who was described as a white man, 30-32 years old, 5'10" tall, weighing 160 pounds, with brown wavy hair, and a mustache turned up at the ends. He was wearing a blue jacket, blue jeans and a dark watch cap. He spoke with a southern drawl.

Anyone recognizing the man is asked to contact Daly City police detectives Jim Mondiera and Bob Vogt, who are working on the case with Lt. Roger Austin and Officer Warren Keith.

South SF Span to Reopen

South San Francisco's Utah Bridge, closed since last summer, will be reopened to automobile traffic sometime next week.

Director of Public Services Frank Addiego said county officials plan a ceremony at the bridge in the city's industrial area at 11:30 p.m. on Feb. 14.

However, he said the bridge probably will be open to vehicles a few days earlier.

The city has been diverting traffic in that area to West Harris Avenue since the bridge construction began.

The work is part of a $9 million project extending over seven years to control flooding on Colma Creek.

City Engineer Bob Yee said the county had posted signs at the detour notifying travelers the bridge should have been opened in October. However, Yee said, the construction firm's contract extended through this month and the sign apparently was in error.

Helen

people are to be encouraged to correct pollution, she said.

"We need a revolutionary spirit in our city, our state — and we need to act now," she said.

She proposes that customers of the Coastside Scavenger Co. would be charged 95 cents — or one-fourth the regular monthly bill — for service once a month, and $1.90 — or one-half the regular bill — for service twice a month.

The PG&E, the telephone companies and the water companies all charge their customers on the basis of how frequently the utilities are used. The scavenger companies, she said, should be no different.

At the same time, she's proposing a massive conservation drive for the collection and recycling of products. She envisions volunteers throughout the city collecting neighborhood recyclables and taking them to the recycling center.

She's even made up the slogans to promote the campaign — "Give a hoot — don't pollute," "Help your city — help yourselves," and "Pollute less — pay less."

"We've got to do something about out diminsihing dumpsites," she said.

Council members listened politely to her suggestions that night. No one suggested investigating their reasponsibility.

But she's undaunted. She plans to check with one California city that does have a sliding scale for garbage fees, Paradise, and report to the council.

Meanwhile, she's seeking support among her friends and colleagues who recycle.

"Wouldn't it be great if the whole nation could learn how to consume less and pollute less so we don't have so many garbage companies," she says with a smile.

Of course, she acknowledges, it might put a lot of people out of work but garbage companies could readily transfer to trucking industries, since that's primarily what they are already, she pointed out.

"Why in the world should they force people to pay for something they don't need?" she asked. "Everything should be proportionate."

Miss Price simply doesn't pay for garbage. Since she moved to her Pedro Point home three years ago, she has never signed up for scavenger service, never left a can on the curb and the company has never sent her a bill.

If only people would listen to the news and read newspapers, she said, they would realize that an energy crisis and a water shortage are entirely possible.

"Think about it," she declared. "Yes, it can happen here and it is happening here. The party is over.

"The party of waste and pollution and consumption is over. Those who want to waste and pollute more — let them pay for it.

"If you do anything to excess, you should pay for it," she said. "I just want fairness. Fairness for everybody. It's probably just a dream but I'll go on fighting it in my own little way."

Recall

began its recall campaign just a few weeks short of the new law. Old guidelines forced recall proponents to wait seven days after publication before circulating petitions.

City Atty. Gloria Scheid said it was true that the 1977 laws would have given the committee an extra week. But, she said, neither she nor the city manager had the authority to grant an extension.

Talk of a recall first surfaced in Pacifica at a Town Hall meeting last fall. But the Recall Committee didn't form until November, when the council majority — the three recall subjects — voted against a 92-unit apartment complex called "The Portolas."

The recall proponents said the council majority's decision was based purely on personal philosophies as environmentalists. The three quickly were labeled "no-growthers."

The council members said the charges against them were general and vague.

Recall opponents also formed a committee and, led by Jane Gates, countered that a recall and a general election to replace ousted council members each would cost Pacifica residents $10,000.

The next general election, they said, is just a little more than a year away. Mrs. Fulford and Lorvan, with Councilman Stan Farber, will face reelection at that time.

Mrs. Wilson said she believes the recall effort had a positive effect on the city.

"Many more people are aware of their city government than in the past," she said.

She said she was appalled by the number of residents who had no idea what the controversy was all about.

Many, she said, asked "What recall?" and "Who's on the City Council?"

"I thought, 'Oh dear, they live in a vacuum'," she said.

"This, to me, is the most appalling thing," she said. "This is why government gets in trouble."

In a press release distributed Monday the committee noted that the number of signatures gathered on petitions was about half the number of residents who voted in 1976 and more than half of those who voted in 1974.

Mrs. Fulford received 2,247 votes and Lorvan 2,374 in the 1975 election. Savage got 3,106 in 1976.

Mrs. Wilson said the committee spent all the money it received in donations approximately $300 — and is still $300 in the hole.

Daly City gets about 50 per cent of its water from San Francisco's Hetch Hetchy system and the remainder from wells.

Nearby cemeteries and golf courses get practically all their water from wells.

The use of reclaimed water for agricultural uses is not new. San Francisco has been using treated wastewater to irrigate Golden Gate Park for 35 years.

And Daly City's new $13.26 million plant, at the corner of Lake Merced Drive and John Daly Boulevard, will give a higher degree of treatment to its wastewater than the Golden Gate Park system before it is piped to its customers.

"There is absolutely no danger from contamination of any sort. This water is perfectly good," Bernicchi explains.

The Daly City plant is the biggest public works project ever in Daly City — bigger even than the famed Junipero Serra Freeway project.

To date, the plant has consumed more than 10,000 cubic yards of concrete and 1,000 tons of steel reinforcing rods.

When complete, the total amount of concrete used will exceed 14,000 cubic yards.

Another $1.25 is the estimated cost of a pipeline to distribute the treated wastewater.

Final capacity of the modern treatment plant will be 8 million gallons of secondary treated wastewater daily.

With public awareness of the water shortage and the expected cutback in water use by residents, the Daly City plant could experience a drop of about two million gallons in daily output, said Bernicchi.

At one time, Pacific Gas and Electric Company asked about using the district's reclaimed water to cool a proposed power plant, located in Daly City near the city limits of Brisbane.

Bernicchi said some PG&E officials feared that the use of reclaimed wastewater might create an "aerosol problem" from mist rising from the plant's cooling towers.

Bernicchi and Gehre scoffed at this, pointing out that engineers agree with their findings that no such nuisance would be created as a result of using reclaimed water.

It was understood PG&E now proposes using some four million gallons of domestic water provided by San Francisco.

PUC Hears SamTrans, Greyhound Pact Plan

A state Public Utilities Commission hearing on the San Mateo County Transit District takeover of Greyhound bus service in this county was to conclude Tuesday in San Francisco. A decision by the single examiner is expected later.

The district and Greyhound have approved a contract calling for the takeover, possibly by as early as March.

The district is to provide express north-south service from Palo Alto to San Francisco, with special emphasis on service to San Francisco International Airport and the Daly City BART station.

But the agreement needs PUC approval. The hearing began Monday with a day of testimony from district officials, most of it from Finance Director Al Cianfichi, who was to continue Tuesday on the financial and contractual aspects of the service.

Statements from Board Chairman William H. Royer, by letter, and Director Robert E. Norris, in person, backed the contract, calling it a completion of a short-term mass transit plan mandated by the people several years ago.

The PUC examiner also will have to decide on a request from the City of Palo Alto for a delay in the SamTrans takeover of Greyhound, that city saying the move might effect remaining Greyhound service in Santa Clara County.

Greyhound has applied for abandonment of some service there.

SamTrans and Santa Clara County officials are to meet Friday to work out details of the Palo Alto end of the service.

Medics' Poll Favors Chope Staying Open

Related Story, Page 21

An overwhelming number of San Mateo County physicians who responded to a survey by Supervisor Edward J. Bacciocco Jr. are opposed to the closing of Chope Community Hospital, and a majority of them would decline to take on any new Medi-Cal patients should the hospital close.

Bacciocco today revealed the results of a questionnaire he sent out last summer to the county's 725 physicians concerning the hospital. The Board of Supervisors is in the process of determining if a new health system for the county's indigent will result in the closing of Chope.

Bacciocco said today that he has waited until the present time, during the process of hearings by the Board of Supervisors concerning a future health care system, to release results of his survey "so the material will be relevant."

If he had released the results "prematurely," Bacciocco said, "the facts would be obscured by the other mass of evidence."

- Do you feel we should close Chope Hospital?
- If we close Chope Hospital, would you take care of those patients in your office? In a hospital? Yes, 191; no, 175.
- Would you take on any new Medi-Cal patients? Yes, 154; no, 211.
- Would you take on any new Medicare patients? Yes, 274; no, 89.

Some selected comments of physicians who advocate keeping Chope functioning in its present capacity:

Dr. Sidney M. Marchasin, chairman of the Medical Section, Sequoia Hospital — "It is impossible to obtain neurological consultation for any Medi-Cal patient in this community, and it is practically impossible to obtain an orthopedic consultation. The doctors in both these specialties refuse to see new Medi-Cal patients.

"In terms of my own practice, I am reimbursed at the rate of $8.71 for each office visit. My normal office visit charge is $17.50 and my office overhead runs approximately 40 to 50 per cent of my total gross. Seeing Medi-Cal patients is therefore a loss leader. I take care of those Medi-Cal patients who are already in my practice, but will not accept new patients.

"Medi-Cal . . . as it now operates has become so overladen with bureaucracy, paperwork, excessive calls for admission of patients to obtain approval, excessive calls for administering of drugs which are not on the Medi-Cal list . . . causes excessive utilization of my time, my secretary's time and excessive utilization of paperwork."

Dr. John C. Crouse of Redwood City — "Due to heavy influx of Medi-Cal patients into the Redwood Medical Clinic because other private physicians are refusing to care for them, we have had to put a quota on the percentage of Medi-Cal patients taken in."

Dr. Glen H. Connelly Jr. of San Mateo — "Medi-Cal is a bust. It's time we recognized the county hospital system is vital."

Dr. Robert Foulke of San Mateo — "The private practice cannot afford to take care of Medi-Cal patients — the government asked for this, now it will have to pay. The county had a gold mine prior to Medi-Cal when all physicians services at the county hospital were donated."

Comments of two physicians who favor closing of Chope Hospital:

Dr. Peter Packard of San Mateo — "The inpatient load at Chope Hospital could be easily dispersed amongst the other appropriate hospitals in San Mateo County . . . without producing an undue load on either the hospital facilities or the attending physicians. From that standpoint, Chope Hospital could easily be closed with the attendant savings to the San Mateo taxpayers."

Dr. Robert G. Brown of Redwood City — "It would make much economic sense to have Chope Hospital closed . . . and have county patients go to the hospital of the patient's choice.

Grand Jury Declines To Join Salary Study

The San Mateo County Grand Jury will not include a member of that body on the blue ribbon committee which the Board of Supervisors has authorized to advise it on a method of setting supervisorial salaries.

The board, acting on recommendation of Supervisor Edward J. Bacciocco Jr., approved formation of the committee about two weeks ago. Bacciocco recommended that membership of the committee include one person each from the 1975-76 and 1976-77 grand juries.

In a terse letter to Board Chairman John M. Ward, the current Grand Jury foreman, J. Paul Ortega, states that "After much deliberation, the 1976-77 Grand Jury declined the recommendation to include one of its members on the blue ribbon committee.

"It is the considered opinion of this body that it would be improper for one of its members to participate in this task force."

Ortega noted in the letter that the Grand Jury made a recommendation to the board in December that it freeze its salaries for a period of two years. However, Dist. Atty. Keith C. Sorenson ruled that the county charter prohibits such action.

The salaries of supervisors currently are pegged at 60 per cent of the salaries paid Superior Court judges.

At Tuesday's board meeting, Supervisor William H. Royer plans to request enactment of an ordinance which would eliminate the tie of supervisors' salaries to those of judges and would link any future increases to the California Consumer Price Index, but not to exceed five per cent in any one year, commencing Jan. 1, 1979.

Water Needs Can Be Met

The San Francisco Water Department can meet San Mateo County's water needs for the next 13 years.

That was the surprising conclusion of a $112,000 "Comprehensive Water Resources Management Plan for San Mateo County" unveiled at a day-long conference at Skyline College in San Bruno Saturday.

Not only did the report, prepared by Leeds, Hill & Jewitts, Inc., consulting engineers for the county, draw some critical comments from both Gerald Meral, assistant director of the State Department of Water Resources, and some members of the audience at the workshop, but so did Skyline College.

Gene Kelleher, Peninsula Division manager of the San Francisco Water Department, expressed surprise that lawn sprinklers were going full blast under a heavily clouded sky as he arrived on the campus.

"They were watering their wall to wall grass as I walked in," he commented. "That is not very good conservation."

And Meral said he was "very disturbed" to see so much water going off down the street.

The projection that San Francisco's Hetch Hetchy system will be able to supply the county's water needs until 1990 was a surprising reversal of past reports.

But Walter Schulz, who represented the consulting firm and outlined a synopsis of the yet-to-be-published water report, said that because population growth is less than previously predicted and zoning can be used to ban heavy industrial water users from the remaining undeveloped areas, San Francisco should be able to provide water for the urbanized area of the county.

He suggested, however, that this could be augmented by wastewater for some agricultural and landscape uses and for a cooling system for a new generating plant that is to be built either near Daly City or South San Francisco by the PG&E.

The report included alternate water sources but generally disregarded them as too expensive.

Schulz said, for example, distribution of reclaimed water would not only involve the cost of a filtration plant but require construction of a "dual system" to deliver it any distance.

Desalinization would cost 15 to 20 times as much as any other water source and would use one irreplaceable resource, fuel oil, to supply a resource that can be replaced.

Another plan could be to supply water from the Central Valley Project, but, the report said, the state has no plans to "sell or commit at this time or in the foreseeable future so the question is academic."

During the discussion it was noted that San Francisco has already constructed part of a a fourth aqueduct or "barrel" to deliver 400 to 600 million gallons a day from the Hetch Hetchy system.

"The nitrate level in Pescadero's drinking water supply is so high we can only assume sewage is getting back into it," he reported.

The south coast cannot even afford any increase in recreation, Schulz said, suggesting that a moratorium be placed on developments of any kind.

One of the suggestions he made was that reclaimed wastewater be dumped into the Bay, south of Sierra Point, to revive marine life once there.

Meral said he was disturbed that the report did not pay more attention to the use of wastewater for preserving the ground water level, to water conservation and to environmental problems that might be brought up by construction of the fourth aqueduct.

There is only a 45 mile stretch of the fourth aqueduct left to be constructed.

Other possible water sources mentioned but rejected were Santa Clara County, Alameda County and the delta area north of Contra Costa County.

A panel composed of Jerome J. Gilbert, president of J.B. Gilbert & Associates; Ted Gillis, acting chairman of the Environment Quality Coordinating Council, and Kelleher discussed various aspects of the water problem.

Ed Morey, chairman of the Peninsula Water Agency, chairman of workshop, said another conference will be held the last Saturday of this month at the College of San Mateo.

It was pointed out at the outset of the meeting, a bill introduced by Assemblyman Dixon Arnett requires the report be submitted to each city council and water agency, and that 50 per cent approval must be obtained by Jan. 1, 1978.

Andrews Concert Sunday

St. Andrew's Community Concerts will open its second season with a concert featuring the San Francisco Boys Chorus at 3 p.m. Sunday.

The group is the only one of its kind in the United States and was formed in 1948 as a repertory resource of the San Francisco Opera.

The music director and conductor is William Ballard, who holds bachelor's and master's degrees in music from Chicago Music College and the doctor of philosophy degree in music from Northwestern University and Centenary College.

The concerts in this series are held at St. Andrew's Catholic Church on the corner of Southgate and Sullivan in Daly City. Memberships in the series are available or tickets may be purchased at the door.

The price of admission is $2 for adults and $1 for senior citizens and students.

A Chase Ends in Splatter

A South San Francisco police car ended up stuck in the San Francisco Bay mudflats early today during a high-speed chase down the Bayshore Freeway.

Officer Robert Tiveronas was not injured when his unmarked police car careened off the roadway near the Candlestick exit to the freeway, smashed through a roadside sign and splattered into the mud.

The car he was pursuing also crashed nearby, but managed to stay out of the bay, police said.

Both cars were heavily damaged in the incident.

Tiveronas was on stakeout near the Holiday Inn, 245 S. Airport Blvd., South San Francisco, shortly before 3 a.m., when he began following a car reported to have been stolen earlier in San Francisco.

Instead of stopping, the suspect car, containing Cordelia Brock, 28, and her husband, Albert, 31, of San Francisco, accelerated, police said.

At speeds reportedly reaching 100 miles per hour, Tiveronas chased the car northbound along the Bayshore Freeway — until the two fast-moving vehicles tried to make the Candlestick Park turnoff.

The Brocks were booked on charges of car theft.

South San Francisco's "hotel row" on South Airport Boulevard has been the scene of several crimes in recent weeks and police are patrolling the area in unmarked cars, according to Officer Fred Carelli.

STUDENT PROJECT

Sue Van der Ven (second from left), a teacher corps intern in the seventh grade social studies class at Colma Intermediate School, shows off a multi-cultural mural designed by her students. The mural, to be displayed in the school multi-purpose room, helped students understand various ethnic backgrounds. Students involved in the project are (from left) Cedric Jenkins, Yvette Haynes and Pat Villareal.

Winter Ballet Event

The company, composed of some 42 girls, participated in the ballet program which is sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department.

At the close of the performance a presentation of flowers was made by James Fusaro, chairman, and Sheryn Smith, member of the Daly City Recreation Commission. Gayle Rigoni, a member of the Senior Civic Ballet and presently the only original member, also presented a bouquet of red roses to Miss Roberts as a token of the girls' appreciation for her work and dedication to the ballet program.

Miss Rigoni will be leaving the company since she will be graduating from Serramonte High School and plans to continue her education.

Miss Rigoni has been with the Ballet Company since it was founded by Director Diane Roberts in 1970.

Pacifican Graduated

Army PFC Paul M. Helgeson, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert J. Helgeson, 1365 Lerida Way, Pacifica, recently graduated from high school while serving with the 1st Infantry Division in Goppingen, Germany.

PFC Helgeson, a gunner with Combat Support Company, 1st Battalion of the division's 26th Infantry, entered the Army in December 1975.

In Touch With Fashions

For the second straight weekend, localites will be very much in touch with the world of fashion!

Last Saturday, 1,500 women gathered in the Grand Ballroom of the Fairmont hotel for the fashion show and luncheon sponsored by the Westlake Catholic Women and this weekend many of the same ladies will meet in the Westlake Community Center to see fashions from Serramonte's Little Daisy Shop and support the programs of the North Peninsula Auxiliary of the Florence Crittenton Services.

Mrs. Nanda Stewart is chairing this event and Mrs. Eugene Crandall will do the fashion commentary. Tickets to "Hearts and Flowers" are available from Mrs. Alvan Beall, 305 Moncada Way in San Francisco.

MRS. MARY ASSILY, chairwoman of the Worship committee at Lakeside Presbyterian Church, reminds dance enthusiasts that this Sunday at 9 a.m., Mrs. Anne Owens, regional publicity director of the Sacred Dance Guild and director of the Auburn Sacred Dance Choir, will present a sacred dance worship service in the social hall of the church, located at the corner of Nineteenth Avenue and Eucalyptus Drive in San Francisco.

Child care and Sunday school classes are available for children during the service. For more information call the church office, 564-8833.

FROM DANCE in the morning to a piano concert in the afternoon, Sunday promises to be a day of fine cultural experiences.

The Mary's Help Hospital Guild is sponsoring the afternoon of music, featuring the talented Phyllis Ryan, beginning at 3:30 p.m. at 3368 Jackson St.

Mrs. Fran Gaffigan, 1544 Victoria Way, Pacifica, is in charge of reservations. A donation of $3 per person is being requested.

MEMBERS OF the Fifty-Plus club are gearing up for another jaunt, this time to the Southern California Date Festival, Feb. 21-25.

Mrs. Edna Laurel Calhan, the lady who arranges the tours, reports that the club tour members will leave San Francisco on Feb. 21, tour the Diablo Canyon Nuclear Power Plant, dine at the Madonna Inn in San Luis Obispo, journey on to Palm Springs, ride the aerial tram up Mount San Jacinto and then proceed to the Date Festival in Indio. The tour will end on Feb. 25.

For information, contact Mrs. Elizabeth Funderburg.

MRS. VIRGINIA TIERNEY, the president of the Daly City Host Lioness Club, has announced her committee heads for the coming months.

Among those who have agreed to assist her are Mrs. May Charette and Mrs. Florence Hopman, telephone committee; Genevieve Rohl will be the telephone committee alternate. Mrs. Bernice Hannah is the chaplain; Mrs. Dolly Lewkowitz is the tailtwister with Mrs. Pat Hanson the alternate. Mrs. Esther Nolan is sunshine chairman; Mrs. Jacquie Choppelas is chairman of the accessories committee; Mrs. Virginia Letsinger, citizenship chairman and Mrs. Nanda Stewart is in charge of decorations. Mrs. Kaye Moon is the parliamentarian.

DOROTHY DEBOLT of fame in Joseph P. Blank's book "Nineteen Steps up the Mountain" will be the guest speaker at the Feb. 24 meeting of the Friends of the Daly City Library.

Members of the "Friends" board met in the home of Mrs. Betty Martinez last week and worked out plans for the February meeting in the Serramonte library.

Special feature of the planning session was a special Valentine's treat prepared, as a surprise, by the hostess, for the board.

Garden Village PTA Founder's Day Program

The Garden Village PTA in unincorporated Colma will present its annual Founders Day Program Feb. 17 at 7:30 p.m. at 208 Garden Lane, Colma.

Mrs. Glenn Ullom, chairwoman, announced this year's theme as "Every Child Needs You" and that the program will include the presentation of the Honorary Service Awards.

This award goes annually to a member of the local community who has devoted much to the students, the school and the community.

Good morning, good cooks.

Wonders of dairy sour cream never cease. For witness, we offer this special flavorful jack cheese and sour cream entree.

It's a delicious concoction of tastes and textures put together in layers and baked until hot and bubbly. The mingle of flavors is meant to tease and appease the taste buds and satisfy hungry people. A fresh vegetable garnish adds an attractive contrast in texture and color.

GREEN CHILI SOUR CREAM CASSEROLE

6 corn torillas
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 (10-3/4 ounce) can cream of chicken soup
½ teaspoon salt
1 (4-ounce) can diced green chiles
2 eggs
2 cups grated monterey jack cheese
½ cup chopped onion
1 medium green pepper, chopped
Shredded lettuce, tomato wedges, sliced green onions

Cut each of the six tortillas into 8 wedges. Mix the one cup sour cream, undiluted can of cream of chicken soup, half teaspoon salt, four ounces chiles and two eggs. Mix the two cups grated monterey jack cheese with the half-cup onions and three-fourths of the green pepper.

In a shallow 2-quart baking dish, layer tortilla wedges, sour cream mixture and cheese mixture. Ending with cheese. Bake uncovered in 375-degree oven for 45 minutes or until golden on top and heated through. Top with shredded lettuce, tomato wedges, remaining chopped green pepper and sliced green onions. (For an added treat, sliced avocado.) Makes 4 very, very generous servings. (We served 5 easily.

Pacifica's Census

State Officials Sees No Need for Re-evaluation

By JANET PARKER

A State Department of Finance official Friday said he sees no reason for the state's census officials to re-evaluate Pacifica's recent controversial census.

Walter Hollomann, chief of the Population Research Unit, said he's satisfied that Pacifica's census had "good coverage, good administration, a good supervisor, and a good man working for the city on it.

"The whole thing was perfectly normal," Hollomann said in Sacramento.

"The law requires us to certify a census to the state controller only at the city's request," Hollomann said. "If the city doesn't request our certification, we won't certify it."

"I'm bewildered by their (the city's) belief that the thing was valueless," Hollomann said.

Pacifica asked the state to supervise a census last year. It cost the city $22,000.

However, the final tally released in December turned the census into a controversy. The figures fell far short of what many Pacificans had expected. The census population was 37,311 — only slightly more than the 1970 federal census figure of 36,020.

On Jan. 24 and 25, the council challenged the census methods and voted to pay the state-appointed census supervisor "under protest."

Some council members were especially concerned because the population figure is used to determine the amount of certain reimbursements to the city in gas tax funds.

On Jan. 27, City Manager Don Weidner wrote to Hollomann asking if his agency has any methods of procedures to provide an "independent audit and objective testing of our census procedures."

Weidner noted that the city census had been challenged by some citizens for inaccuracies, improper procedures and false information.

"While the city staff strongly believes the process had good integrity and the results are accurate and within acceptable limits of error, we believe that rumors and apprehensions of this kind need to be put to rest as quickly as possible," Weidner wrote.

Hollomann, however, said he sees no reason to perform such a review.

The Department of Finance continually makes estimates of every city's population, he said, by checking the number of housing units and the number of households.

"In point of fact, the census turned up the households we thought were there, but the size of the household went down," he said. "This is a statewide and nationwide phenomenon."

The department, he said, had assumed Pacifica's population was dropping, but not quite as fast as it apparently had been.

If Pacifica does not certify the census, Holloman said, the state controller simply will continue to use the last certified population figure for the city, 39,150.

Hollomann said his department will use the 1976 census figure for its purpose, although it has no bearing on revenues to the city.

"We are not going to pretend the census did not happen," Hollomann said.

Meanwhile, the City Council reportedly decided last Monday night in an executive session not to investigate or prosecute any of the 65 census enumerators.

Weidner and City Atty. Gloria Scheid met with the council to discuss the possibility of action against Rosanne Lopez, a census enumerator, who criticized the census procedures at the Jan. 24 council meeting.

Miss Lopez, 22, had said that she had no doubt certain census procedures produced inaccuracies.

She said census officials took names from mailboxes and assumed there were one or two residents when no one was home at apartments.

She also said that her crew leader directed her to duplicate computer cards that were somehow misplaced.

Each person counted in the census was to be represented by a computer card. Miss Lopez said she believed the cards filled out by other census enumerators were misplaced and that there is no way to determine if replacements were made in all cases.

If not, she said, the census could be inaccurate.

Her statement to the council, "We made up a lot of people, was the one that caused Weidner and Ms. Scheid to seek the council's direction.

"The city attorney and I posed to the council that a person — of their own vilation — informed the city council and the staff in public that they had probably falsified records and documents and probably accepted public money under false pretenses," Weidner said Friday.

Weidner said in a memo to the council he was requesting the Police Department to make an investigation of "any and all census workers who may have defrauded the city, misrepresented information to us, or in any other way violated state and local laws."

The council, however, told Weidner and Ms. Scheid in executive session to drop the investigation, Weidner said.

Sharp Increase in Business Fees Stirs SSF Council

A young interior designer told the South San Francisco City Council this week that new business license fees will increase her own fee to the city 500 per cent.

Councilmen expressed alarm at the effect the new fee will have on Rebecca Blackley's business, which she operates in her home on Appian Way.

They agreed to reconsider her position later this year and perhaps provide an adjustment in her fee for 1978.

This year, however, she must pay a fee of $125 — a $100 increase over last year.

"I knew there was going to be an increase but I didn't know it would be 500 per cent," Mrs. Blackley said.

She said that when she first heard the council was considering updating its ordinance, she had no objection. After all, she said, there had been no fee increase in more than 20 years and she was willing to pay her fair share.

When the interior designer went to City Hall to renew her business license early this year, she realized exactly what the new fee would mean for her fledgling business.

The new ordinance places her home-based business in the professional-semi-professional category, which includes attorney's, brokers, dentists and physicians.

All in that category must pay an annual fee of $100 plus $25 for each professional in that business.

That's when Mrs. Blackley decided to investigate the fee practices of other cities. She found that out of the 15 cities in the county which issue business licenses, the most she would have to pay in any other city would be $50.

"It doesn't take much to see the new South City rate is well above the other cities," Mrs. Blackley said.

"They've raised their fees tremendously," she said. "They're way out of proportion with the rest of the county."

She said last year — her first year of business — she collected less than $1,500 in gross receipts.

If it weren't for the fact that she is operating her business in her own home, she would move to another city to take advantage of lower business license fees, she said.

"This is my first year in business," she said. "I'm beginning to pick up and get more contacts. If I have to pay that $125 to stay in business I'll do it."

She proposed a system by which business owners with gross receipts of less than $5,000 a year would pay a flat $25 a year in business license fees — a system similar to that in San Mateo.

Mrs. Blackley said it is unfair to classify artists with other professionals such as attorneys and doctors because artists always are struggling.

City Atty. John Noonan said he will investigate if there is some way to reimburse Mrs. Blackley after this year.

PTG Meeting Is Slated

All Catholic school parents, pastors and principals in the four counties of the Archdiocese of San Francisco have been invited to a special informational meeting sponsored by the Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Parent-Teacher Groups on Feb. 16.

Plans have been completed to present, for the first time, a live presentation on closed circuit television to each of the four county councils of Catholic Parent-Teacher Groups (San Francisco, San Mateo, Marin and Santa Clara).

Scheduled as a follow-up to "Catholic Schools Week" this week, the program is entitled "Catholic Parent-Teacher Groups Today and Tomorrow." The program is planned primarily to underscore the necessity of parent groups in the Catholic schools and how they have evolved in the Archdiocese. Focus will be on their organization, structure and function and where they are progressing.

Panelists will be Monsignor Pierre DuMaine, Archdiocesan superintendent of schools; Mrs. Alexander Martinez, Archdiocesan council president; and Mrs. George Hadfield, council parliamentarian. They will answer questions from the audience via special telephone connections from the four meeting locations. San Mateo County site will be St. Robert's School, 345 Oak St., San Bruno.

Following the presentation, the meetings will conclude with group discussions at each location facilitated by the various presidents of the county councils. Mrs. Frederick Glesener of San Mateo is local PTG president.

FAMILY FILMS FINALLY ARE CATCHING ON

It may be that so-called "family pictures" have finally caught on. During all the years that themes of violence, sex and questionable subjects have dominated movie screens, few family oriented films have attracted an audience outside of the Disney market.

"The problem is involving viewers from 7 to 70. There is a constant need to have kinetic value, usually in the form of wild animals. And then you have to contrive some of the action to keep the interest high at all levels," the tall, prematurely grey British director-writer Stewart Raffill said of his latest film "Across the Great Divide."

His first hit of that particular genre was "The Wilderness Family" which dealt more with the family concept while "Across Divide" has more conflict between the characters themselves.

The latter film has been held over a second week at all Bay Area theaters. Reviews have been good and the public response to intelligent dialogue, good acting, plenty of action and gorgeous scenery has been positive.

"I intend to continue in this genre. Americans seem to be more interested in American stories. They're not so receptive to exotic animals. We shot 'Divide' in 11 weeks for three quarters of a million dollars in Utah and Canada using trained snow tigers that are similar to bengals. All our animals are raised in captivity and are managed by trainers and owners. That includes the cougar, a grizzly bear a pack of wolves and a herd of wild buffalo. We have very little trouble working with the animals although audiences strongly react to wildlife as if they were a real threat," the former stunt man to Tarzans Ron Ely and Mike Henry explained casually.

Set in the year 1876, the film is a heartwarming story about two impish orphans who are tougher than shoeleather when they find themselves abandoned in the Rockies after their grandfather's death. The film features Heather Rattray and Mark Hall (especially attractive young performers) as the spunky pioneer children on their own and Robert Logan and George "Buck" Flower.

"I've written other scripts on other subjects but haven't got very far in having people read them. Once you've made family pictures, producers are reticent to offer you anything else.

"The audience for such themes has always been there but it's been hard to pull them into theaters. These viewers might go to the movies in January, February and March but after that they're off camping or hiking during the summer months.

"It's difficult to sell these films to a distributor as being more than just a children's picture. If you try to embellish an idea and carry it one step further in terms of sophistication, you have to fight the distributor who is afraid of taking the gamble."

Raffill, who just became a U.S. citizen, has just returned from a photographic safari in Africa. He has written two prior films, "When The North Wind Blows" in 1972 and "Napoleon and Samantha" which starred the then-unknown child actress Jody Foster.

Peggy Lee opened last Thursday at the Fairmont Hotel. I was there. My sister wasn't and as an inveterate fan she was very anxious to know "how Peggy did."

What can I say? Peggy sang fine, looks terrible, appears to have a physical problem (emphysema), moves about the stage like a computerized android with two expressions on her taut face: benign to mouth the lyrics and half-smile to acknowledge the applause, plus a mechanical gesture of two index fingers to the mouth for blowing small kisses to the audience.

But what about her singing, Joanie asks. Her singing is fine, exactly as it's always been, full of warmth, heart and inflection. Maybe the dynamics have waned and the sincerity bit become somewhat jaded but the old creamy, dreamy cool is still on her lips through such classics as Porter's "So In Love" and "It Never Entered My Mind."

Peggy Lee

"How does she look? She's grossly overweight but I'm not knocking that because the lady's not been well since a nasty fall in the Waldorf Hotel that had her bedridden with a damaged spine last year. The impression she gives is of being totally tranquilized, spaced out in a way that removes her from reality but which puts her 100 per cent into her act and in some esoteric way works to her advantage.

There's a wafting, waltzing rhythm she puts into her stance that coupled with her totally wrinkle-free countenance makes her look doll-like and amorphous. You know it's Peggy Lee because you recognize the voice but the body and the person appear detached. Her roots are in jazz and she still sounds melancholy and joyous at the same time with an almost hurtful reprimand in her "no, no, no" that is the second chorus of Richie Haven's "I'm Not in Love." But you wonder if that soft, vulnerable puffed up person is part of this world or existing in the bosom of nostalgia.

And frankly, when she sings songs I have sealed so permanently in my memory such as "Why Don't You Do Right" and "Is That All There Is" with a below the belt encore of "I'll Be Seeing You," I'm not so sure she isn't still the greatest stylist around. The problem is I wasn't moved, only fascinated by my automatic response to her soft, seductive phrasing. Maybe I was in a trance.

A FULL WEEK PRIVATE PARTY WANT AD RATES

Family Thrift Special

"Best Bargain in San Mateo County"

2 LINES-9 ISSUES ( 140,000 HOMES ) -$7.00

These special "Wanted To Buy" or "For Sale" Private Party ads will appear in all Amphlett Printing Company's publications for 1 week, 6 issues of The Times, 1 issue of The Post and 2 issues of the San Bruno Publications, 9 publication times in all. This combination of publications gives you over 140,000 circulation concentrated in San Mateo County.

The rate for these special private party ads is $7.00 for a 2 line minimum ad for 9 issues. Each additional line, above the 2 line minimum, will be billed at $3.00 per line. So, a 2 line ad for 1 week in all 9 issues of Amphlett Printing Company's Publications would cost $7.00. A 3 line ad would cost $10.00, a 4 line ad $13.00, etc. These special Private Party Want Ad rates are available only for items priced below $500, or when ads contain multiple items, the total value of all advertised items may not exceed $500.

These special private party ads will appear in the appropriate classification within the Classified Section.

New Private Party Want Ad Rate About 39¢ Per Line Per Issue

The requirements for special Private Party Want Ads are:

(1) Only private party advertisers are eligible, no commercial ads accepted.

(2) The item or items advertised "For Sale" or "Wanted to Buy" must have a total value of less than $500.

(3) Each item advertised must be individually listed and individually priced. For ads containing multiple items, the number of items listed may not exceed the number of lines in the ad. i.e. A 2 line ad may contain no more than 2 items, a 3 line ad may contain up to 3 items, etc.

(4) The ad must be placed for 1 full week, 9 times, in all of Amphlett Printing Company's publications. You may cancel the ad prior to the full 9 times appearances but you will be charged the full 9 time rate, no refunds.

(5) DEADLINES: Classified advertising must be placed by 3:00 p.m., day preceding publication, Monday through Friday: 12 noon Saturday for Monday's publication, and 48 hours preceding Holidays.

Le Pacini

Someone asked me, recently, what I though of the Giants' inviting Willie McCovey to spring training. That's easy to answer, because I did it at some length in a column last March, when it was rumored strongly that the Giants were trying to get McCovey back from San Diego.

I said, in part:

"I think it would be a good move, though I have talked to baseball men outside the Giant organization who don't think it makes much sense.

"Their reasoning is logical. Yes, they admit, no team is goin to be hurt having a power swinger like Willie coming off the bench in the late innings of a close game. Yes, they admit, he will draw fans. But, they conclude, is a pinch-hitter worth what McCovey would make in salary? They figure he might draw extra fans for his first appearance or two, and that after the bloom is off the sage, his drawing power would be negligible.

"I can understand all of the above reasoning, but disagree with the conclusions.

"To begin with, the question of McCovey's projected salary is a rather moot question if the . . . owners are willing to pay it. If they don't care, why should people outside the organization fret about it?

"AS FAR AS McCovey's being just a pinch-hitter . . . I feel he would play more often, not only because of the salary, but also because the Giants need another big power man, especially against certain pitching and against certain teams in certain parks . . . And even if McCovey didn't do much more than pinch-hit, his threat in a pennant race would be worth all the Giants could afford to pay him.

"But I have a hunch the Giant hierarchy has more in mind than just what McCovey could contribute on the field . . . This is a young Giant club with little mature leadership and no tradition of winning.

"McCovey isn't a rah-rah type field leader, but he is one of the best-liked athletes to ever play in the Bay Area, both inside the clubhouse and out. As a respected former genuine "super star" and elder statesman, he could lend a lot of stability to the locker room just by being there and being the kind of man he is.

"And symbolically, his influence could be tremendous, because he would be the only player to last compete on a Giant winner, and a link to a successful past could help to establish a winning attitude and pride.

"McCovey, the big guy who played hurt and never complained or made excuses but just minded his own business and always tried his best to win, could have the kind of influence on the Giants that a quiet, hurt, aging Joe DiMaggio once had on younger clubs with great but immature players like Mickey Mantle and Whitey Ford.

"And finally, McCovey's actual drawing power at the gate could be a secondary factor to the management, who, I assume, would have McCovey at every civic function time would allow, spreading good will and projecting that old Giants' winning image.

"It's called public relations, and in his own quiet way, McCovey's value to the Giants could go beyond runs batted in and transcend immediate gate counts."

THE GENERAL Giants's — or McCovey — situation hasn't changed enough for me to essentially change the position taken in March.

In the meantime, however, the Sporting News printed an independent scouting report of all the free agents (before most of them were signed), of which McCovey was one, and Big Willie and Nate Colbert were the only two players who were not evaluated, because the consensus opinion was they were "washed up."

So what does Giants' management think of that? Again, utilizing the good services of the Sporting News and writer Art Spander:

"Some people said the trade (McCovey to San Diego for pitcher Mike Caldwell) was the start of the Giants start toward disaster.

"It wasn't so much that McCovey was unable to hit as he had in earlier days . . . It was that McCovey was the team's statesman, its motivator, titular head as it were, a gentleman who had been there and could tell the 20-year-old what it was like.

"It is only speculation, but the personality clashes inside the Giants' locker room might not have occurred if McCovey had been around . . .

" 'I don't look at McCovey's .203 batting average with San Diego last season,' said Giants' owner Bob Lurie. 'I look at what he can do for the Giants — on the bench or out in the field. Just sitting there in the dugout he'll give rival managers something to think about in the late innings.

" 'He has class and style, too, somebody the younger players can look up and go to for advice'."

DON'T KNOW why Bubble Hawkins, the Warriors' 12th man last year, should be causing such a sensation as the late pick-up who came from out of nowhere to be the New York Nets' sole shinning light thus far this season. Had any of these Easterners read Pacini's 48 minute stats last year, Hawkins' stardom would have been predictable.

During regular season play, every time Hawkins put in 48 minutes of NBA basketball (remember, that's one full game), he scored 39 points, shooting 51 per cent from the field; had 9.4 rebounds, 3.1 assists, 3.1 steals and 2.5 blocked shots.

During the playoffs, Hawkins went at a clip of 40 points a game, had eight rebounds and four assists. Not bad for a guard.

Of course, we weren't dealing his stats from much of a sample, and he did get in a lot of "garbage" time and was spotted very carefully by coach Al Attles both in terms of game situations and match-ups — but even so, those stats showed that he could shoot and was aggressive.

As I've always admitted, the 48 increment method of figuring stats has its distortive properties, but they are probably less severe than the distortions caused by the in-use method of counting any part of a game — even if its 30 seconds — as a full game in figuring per game average statistics.

Sure, bench men especially tend to show up well under my method because they are spotted by the coaches into specific situations designed to benefit them personally. But on the other hand, if a team's benchmen continually have such outstanding statistics — as the Warriors' reserves have had the past few years — then it at least demonstrates that the coach has been constantly getting the most from his bench.

LOCAL NOTE: Belated congratulations to Keith Rowen, the San Francisco kid who was All-City at Lowell High and All Coast at Stanford, for his being named offensive line coach at Long Beach State under new head coach Dave Currey. Currey and Rowen served as assistants at Stanford last year.

Keith, a very strong tackle in his playing days, put in one year of pro ball with the Philadelphia Eagles. In case you were born yesterday, he is the son of long-time San Francisco State football coach Vic Rowen.

Serramonte's Case Seems Clear

By CHRIS STAVE
Post Staff Writer

WHEN SERRAMONTE High's basketball team was forced to forfeit five North Peninsula League wins for using an ineligible player, you'd have thought the case ranked right up there with the old NYC scandals from all the publicity that got churned up.

I think the whole thing has been blown a little out of proportion.

The question at Serramonte was one of residency — did, in fact, certain basketball players actually live in Serramonte's district? It is a question that has been raised before in connection with other NPL schools — and a question that could probably be raised at most schools in the County.

The NPL suffers particularly in this regard because of some schools' proximity to San Francisco. Some kids would rather go to a Daly City school than a San Francisco school. Sometimes their parents would prefer that they go to a "suburban" school than a San Francisco school. Sometimes the kids, or their parents, would prefer that a student play for one coach rather than another.

The situation certainly isn't peculiar to Serramonte. And I'm not sure that Serramonte is guilty of any really heinous offenses.

TO BEGIN WITH, people kept citing rumors (unreliable but heavily consulted sources) that two Serramonte players, Ricky Mixon and Laron Franklin, lived in San Francisco rather than in Serramonte's district. The rumors were interesting primarily because Serramonte hadn't lost a game.

When the crunch finally came, it wasn't over Mixon or Franklin. It was over Tom Sandoval, a student who had transferred from Sacred Heart.

Inquiries were going to be made about Mixon and Franklin.

But Serramonte itself blew the whistle on Sandoval, and Sandoval's case was the one that cost the Regents those five games.

Serramonte faculty member Mike Rueda had called Sandoval in to discuss something, and pulled Sandoval's file. Rueda looked at the information, came across the place of residence and failed to recognize the street name. "Where's that?" he asked. Thus the can of worms was opened. Sandoval lived in Pacifica, well within Oceana's district, and shouldn't have gone to Serramonte.

Sandoval was held out of that day's basketball game, and all authorities were duly notified.

Sandoval had registered during the summer; he had handed his transcripts and a card he filled out to someone who didn't question them. It was a clear error which Serramonte didn't attempt to hide.

Oceana filed a protest (including Mixon and Franklin, the real objects of interest), and Serramonte Principal Dion DuBois insisted upon a hearing.

According to Rueda, DuBois asked the Board of Managers what it wanted to know about Mixon and Franklin. The Board had heard that Mixon and Franklin didn't live in Serramonte's district.

DuBois responded that the charge was hearsay, and that proof had been offered to the school that both Mixon and Franklin did, by the letter of the rules, live in Serramonte's district.

So the Board slapped Serramonte for using Sandoval (and then made Sandoval eligible for the remaining games) and dismissed the Mixon-Franklin issue.

THAT WAS, in fact, the end of the matter. But neither the publicity nor the rumors stopped there.

One newspaper continued to cite "rumors," and speculated that a further inquiry might be made.

Well, inquiries can be made until Doomsday. If other schools think Mixon and Franklin live in San Francisco, then the burden of proof is on the othe other schools — since Serramonte has been offered proof to the contrary on behalf of both students.

Mixon's mother had been contacted several times before the issue became public, and she swore that the family lived in Serramonte's district. In Franklin's case, a lawyer apparently presented the school with a sworn affadavit attesting to the propriety of Franklin's enrollment at the Daly City school.

Serramonte might be in a difficult position if it felt like challenging those contentions.

SERRAMONTE AND Jefferson high schools are right on the edge of San Francisco. They are not really suburban schools, but they seem so to City parents. A parent might be excused for wanting to send a student to Serramonte, say, rather than Wilson. There are all sorts of ways to do that legally.

One source at Jefferson said that officials really weren't sure how many students from San Francisco attended the school (athletes and non-athletes); attempts might be made to weed out kids who didn't legally belong, but it's an uphill fight.

The point is that if parents want to send their children to one public school badly enough, they can find a way to do it. It has been done before — both by the rules and in spite of the rules.

Here's a legally sound case. A potentially good baseball player lives in one school's district, but wants to play for a coach at another school. The player gets an inter-district transfer. He plays at the other school for a while, then the coach leaves. So the player moves on to a third school.

Is that any better or worse than what has been alleged about Mixon, Franklin and Serramonte? Surely not.

Now there may be differences between legal and moral considerations — do parents have a moral right to send their children to another district? Do schools have a moral obligation to check up on every entering student? Maybe, maybe not.

One way or another, however, the Serramonte issue has been decided — at least for now. Serramonte has been offered proof that Ricky Mixon and Laron Franklin are legally enrolled. The Board of Managers has understood and accepted Serramonte's position.

Right now, there isn't much more one can say about the whole thing — and probably the less said, the better.

Jefferson High's basketball team clinched the round-robin title in the North Peninsula League by defeating visiting Half Moon Bay 66-62 Friday night.

Jefferson (11-1) will have to be beaten twice to be eliminated in the Shaughnessy Playoffs to be held at Skyline College Feb. 15, 16, 18.

The Indians last took a NPL title in 1972; they needed that playoff point then, losing to Westmoor in the first playoff game but eventually proceeding to Central Coast Section competition.

In other NPL matchups Friday, Westmoor beat El Camino 50-42, South San Francisco tripped Terra Nova 71-51 and Serramonte poured it on Oceana 92-61.

Half Moon Bay-Jefferson

It was a battle of hot streaks at Jefferson's antiquated gymnasium.

Jefferson was the first to catch fire, running off 12 straight first quarter points to go up 18-8. James Reed and Darryl Jackson sparked that run with some fine offensive rebounding.

Half Moon Bay bounced back, cutting the deficit to five early in the second period, and then went on a scoring binge of its own. The Cougars, effectively utilizing a half court trap press, reeled off 17 consecutive points to take a 10-point advantage.

However, Jefferson scrambled back to within two at halftime and then took control after intermission.

Jeff, paced by the aggressive Jackson, outscored HMB 16-8 in the third period and 8-2 to open the final stanza and its lead was never in jeopardy after that.

The Cougars showed some character by scrapping until the very end. They scored four baskets in the final 53 seconds, but to no avail.

Darryl Jackson led all scorers with 24 points. Darryl's brother, Ralph, did not play because of a sore back and a bruised hand sustained in Wednesday's game with Westmoor. But he should be ready for next week's games.

El Camino-Westmoor

Only a cold first half by Westmoor prevented the Rams from blowing El Camino out early.

Westmoor shot 33 per cent from the floor in the first half while El Camino managed just three field goals in each quarter. The Rams led 23-12 at the half.

Westmoor worked the ball inside well in the early portion of the third quarter and maintained a 10-to-12 point lead. A bucket by Camino forward Kenny Rhodes cut the lead to eight with 1:32 left, but Ram guard Jack Dorn hit a lay-in to end the period and the Colts never seriously challenged after that.

Serramonte-Oceana

Serramonte showed little mercy against an Oceana club that was playing without its top rebounder, Allen Dawkins.

It probably wouldn't have mattered anyway — not the way highly-motivated Serramonte was playing. (Oceana had filed the protest which resulted in Serramonte's forfeiting five early NPL wins.)

Serramonte grabbed an 18-9 lead after one period and then exploded for 34 points in the second quarter. The Regents had a well-balanced attack in the first half, led by Ricky Mixon with 10 points.

The Regents were running effectively and shooting unconsciously. Tom Sandoval's 35-footer at the third quarter buzzer put Serramonte up 71-45.

South City-Terra Nova

Guard Larry Grubbe and forward Leorman Wilson combined for 30 points to lead the Warriors. South City outscored the Tigers in every period to win going away.

Laguna Salada District Eager for Financial Relief

School Closings Expected

By JANET PARKER

The financial boost the Laguna Salada School District in Pacifica expects to gain from the state Supreme Court's Serrano vs. Priest decision won't come soon enough.

The Board of Trustees faced the harsh reality at its meeting last week that at least one of its 15 schools — among the poorest districts in the county — must be closed by September.

After receiving a gloomy report from a district-wide Housing Committee, several trustees also said the district had better prepare to close down three or four more schools in the next few years.

"In all likelihood, over the next few years we are going to be closing more than the one or two or three we close this year," said Trustee Rudie Tretten. "It's terribly important that we move now from the committee's deliberations to a broader discussion of the schools."

The trustees agreed to hold public hearings this month and in March, based on the Housing Committee report. A decision is expected in April.

The report, the product of six meetings, specifically recommends closing one school in 1977-78, either Vallemar or Pedro Valley school.

However, in a secret ballot, the committee voted 14-5 in favor of shutting down Vallemar.

The meeting was held in Vallemar School, which is adjacent to the district office. Nearly 100 parents were there to find out how the trustees are going to handle the proposal to close a school.

Laguna Salada stands to gain large amounts of revenue as a result of the Serrano decision. That ruling stated that all school districts in the state should be spending approximately the same sum for each child. Since the Pacifica schools are now far below the state average, the district budget would receive a considerable boost.

However, the financial scheme to enact Serrano might not be ironed out for years and the LSSD enrollment continues to plunge.

District enrollment in 1972 was 8,361 students. In October 1976, only 6,531 students were registered

Supt. James Brien reported to the committee during its deliberations that, based on recent census data, the district can expect enrollment to decline through 1980-81. The high and low enrollment estimates for that year are 5,278 and 4,011.

The district's school's presently have the space to house 10,000 students, Board Chairman Wilbur Frye said.

There are 334 students enrolled at Vallemar School and 340 at Pedro Valley.

Although the school auditorium was nearly filled, most parents reserved comment for the upcoming hearings.

However, Mrs. Margaret Edhammer, a Vallemar resident for 15 years, said she doubts that closing Vallemar School is the correct choice.

The school, she said, is the mainstream of the community. Vallemar has no park or recreational facilities and no where children can gather with their friends.

She said that if the school is leased to other agencies or private parties, the children still would have access to the playground and that could cause insurance liability problems.

She also questioned the effect that closing the school would have on surrounding residential property values.

Another parent, Margaret Goldman, said the closing of Vallemar School would have a severe effect on the district's alternative school, maintained there.

She said it has taken five years to establish the program and gain acceptance in the community.

"We are no longer 'housed,'" she said. "We are part of the school. You can't move us without having an effect on some of the basic concepts of the program."

"I've lived in Pacifica 10 years and I'm absolutely appalled at the concept we could be closing a school," she said. The district, she said, has been in the low-wealth category and the trustees have taken great pains to maintain educational quality, despite the lack of money.

However, Mrs. Goldman said she wondered what effect the closing of Vallemar or any school would have on the education of the children.

The Housing Committee reported that the district would save $71,564 in salaries, supplies and utilities by closing Vallemar. The savings at Pedro Valley School was estimated at $76,147.

However, the committee favored closing Vallemar because the students could be accommodated at Sharp Park School with class sizes no greater than 30 students.

However, the Vallemar educable-mentally retarded program would be moved to a different school — possibly Pacific Manor — and the four alternative classes wouldd have to be moved to Cabrillo School or Pedro Valley School.

Parents pointed out that it will cost at least $1,750 to transport Vallemar students to Sharp Park, while Pedro Valley students could walk to nearby schools.

The committee, chaired by Beverly Colguhoun, also recommended that schools be leased rather than sold.

Trustee Grady Hesters said he wants assurance from the state that funds for Early Childhood Education at Vallemar school would be transferred along with the students. He said he also wants a report on the costs of maintaining vacant buildings.

"What we have is an emotional question, as well as a logical question," Frye said. The question of closing a school should be a community-wide concern, he added, suggesting a town hall style meeting.

"The Vallemar site may be the one involved today, but it certainly won't be the one involved tomorrow," Trustee Dale Buettegenback concluded.

Genealogy is Fun, But Takes Much Research

Samuel Chandler

Roots! Roots! Roots!

Alex Haley's book has sparked an interest in genealogy that is becoming a modern phenomenon.

Genealogy is fun, but genealogy involves research — hours and hours of it — and after that an intelligent interpretation of facts. More than these, genealogy, to be fun, requires the use of a lively imagination.

LET ME ILLUSTRATE:

Alex Haley heard his grandmother and his aunts tell snatches and patches of a long, cummulative family narrative that had been passed down across the generations. The farthest black person they ever talked about was a man they called "the African who was brought to America on a ship that landed in a place called 'Naplis'."

The African, they said, was bought by a man named "Massa John Waller who had a plantation in Spotsvlania County, Virginia." The African, the old ladies said, called himself "Kintay" and taught his daughter a few African words which were passed from generation to generation. This is all that Haley knew of his ancestor other than the fact that his foot had been cut off to keep him from escaping from his slavery. Haley also knew the tales his people told of the generations that had lived in America since the time of the African.

USING THE African words that his family had passed down Haley searched for a record of his African ancestors in the Library of Congress, the Royal British Museum, the National Archives in Washington, in the Daughters of the American Revolution Library and in Africa itself. To supplement his search he listened to African students in the United States and to ancient "griots" (priests) who lived on the shores of the Gambia River in Africa.

He learned that his ancestor spoke the Mandinka tongue of the Mandingo people. He also learned that his ancestor was the oldest son of one Omoro Kinte and that he had gone into the woods to cut wood and disappeared. The year of his disappearance matched that of the year "the African" was brought to America.

Surmising that "Naplis" where the family legend said that Kintay landed was Annapolis, Maryland, Haley went to the Hall of Records there and learned that in the year his ancestor disappeared in Africa a ship of "choice healthy slaves," arrived. This seemed to prove that his ancestor "Kintay" was the same Kunta Kinte who had disappeared in Africa. Having written down what the "griots" had said, Haley was able to trace his ancestry back several generations beyond Kunta Kinte.

His next problem was to trace the descendants from Kunta Kinte as they were sold from one plantation to another and one state to another. To do this he had to record hundreds of words of legends that had been handed down from generation to generation.

After 30 years he had enough information to make a pedigree sheet. At this point his imagination came into play enabling him to recreate the stories of his ancestors.

His book, Roots, was developed after 30 years of research, interpretation and imagination.

Think not that the story of Haley's search is unique. Genealogy is time consuming research.

Pre-St. Valentine's Day Dance

Thursday, the Senior class at Serramonte High School will sponsor a pre-St. Valentine's Day dance, in the cafeteria, from 8 to 11 p.m.

Featured at the dance will be a local group, "Prime Suspect." Tickets can be purchased at the door; $3 for singles and $5.50 for couples.

The senior class hopes that the dance will be well-attended, because any profit will be used for the good things that are coming up: The prom, senior picnic, grad. night, and graduation.

THANK YOU, the girls on the Serramonte spirit staff who have been doing a great job cheering on the school's basketball team this season as well as promoting school spirit.

The members of the spirit staff are Jeanne Friend, Marianne Calvin, Rhonda Holman, Jackie Kay, Marianne Lenci, Flo Matsu, Stacy Palmer, Ava Pointer, and Pam Scheffler.

Keep up the good work girls!

SERRAMONTE'S trampoline team recently competed against Jefferson High School with all the members receiving ribbons for placing second through fifth.

Congratulations to Lisa Adams, Ade Galvin, Rowena Holman, Greg Isom, Katie Lorber, Terry Small, and Tia Speros.

THE GIRLS' gymnastics team is beginning practice this month in preparation for competition in March. The girls will be competing in bars, beam, vaulting, and floor exercises.

The Serramonte team will be hosting four home meets, March 24, April 13, April 21, and May 11.

Serramonte placed third at the gymnastic finals last year and with many veterans as well as many talented freshmen, it has an excellent chance of winning the league this year.

SERRAMONTE'S concert band, concert choir, and jazz band are in the midst of a tour of local junior high schools and one elementary school. At the schools, they plan and sing some musical selections in hope of encouraging these younger students to enter the Serramonte fine arts department when they reach high school.

More Parents of Mentally Ill Adults Organize

By VERA GRAHAM

A determined group of San Mateo County parents who only three years ago decided to join forces to protect and help their mentally ill sons and daughters is rapidly growing and expanding nationwide.

The result has been that government is becoming aware of the need to give better care to adult schizophrenics at county, state and national levels. It is becoming aware that somebody cares about the victims of mental illness and they can no longer be ignored or warehoused.

The move in San Mateo County was started by a mother who had run up against heartbreaking problems with her son and too many unsympathetic shrugs from those charged with the care of the mentally ill in institutions.

That mother is Eve Oliphant, 3330 La Mesa Drive, San Carlos, president of Parents of Adult Schizophrenics and an active member of the Mental Health Association of San Mateo County.

Together with her friends, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Hoffman, Mrs. Oliphant contacted other distressed parents and formed the second group of Parents of Adult Schizophrenics in California.

"I realized that the best way I could help my son, and the thousands of other young men and women and their parents, was to surface, become visible and vocal and political."

Similar parent groups followed in Santa Clara, Yolo, Napa and Placer counties. Now the move is spreading nationwide.

Meanwhile, Parents of Adult Schizophrenics is continuing its concentrated efforts to spur conversion of the abandoned TB sanatorium, Canyon Hospital, to a facility serving the mentally ill, as promised by the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

Meanwhile, on a national scale, Mrs. Oliphant was invited to address the 129th annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association, held recently in Florida.

The result was that newspapers became interested, stories were printed, parents in similar straits with their mentally ill children contacted Mrs. Oliphant from Illinois, Oregon, Washington and Florida. Similar parent groups have been formed there.

"We immediately sent all available information, informing parents how to go about starting an organization of Parents of Adult Schizophrenics. That is most heartening to us," Mrs. Oliphant said.

"And it's the only way we can protect our sons and daughters who have to be hospitalized in local or state institutions.

"We learned that we had to become visible, vocal and political. We learned the need to bring our problems to the general public through the cooperation of the news media," she said.

"Officials who are not discharging their responsibilities are most sensitive to attention which may put them in an adverse light in the public eye."

Mrs Oliphant emphasizes the general community as a whole has been most sensitive and sympathetic in its response. She added, "Almost any family has had a member with a mental problem to some degree or other, somewhere in the background — or the foreground."

She pointed out that the National Institute of Mental Health projects a 65 per cent increase in mental illness by 1985, notably schizophrenia, among the 25-to-34 age group. It is reported that today more than 20 million Americans suffer from mental illness.

Mrs. Oliphant commented that increasingly people are becoming allergic to food additives and various impurities which, she and the Parents of Adult Schizophrenics believe, are a key factor in mental breakdowns.

Some systems cannot cope with chemicals that are difficult to assimilate, not only drugs and alcohol but various others found in food colorings and artificial preservatives.

Dr. H. Richard Lamb, chief of rehabilitation services for San Mateo County until he moved to Southern California, where he is a professor at UCLA, also spoke before the American Psychiatric Association at its Florida conference.

The conference summary notes, "There is almost universal agreement that the consumer should have input into the planning of community mental health services. But what if the consumer (and we feel this includes both the patient and his family) actually does speak out, and what if he says things that mental health professionals do not want to hear?"

Among the things the professionals don't want to hear is that they have been burdening parents of the mentally ill with the blame for their child's illness and have treated them with "scorn and contempt," in contrast to the concern and sympathy extended to parents whose child has a fatal physical illness.

It is pointed out the San Mateo County organization of Parents of Adult Schizophrenics decided on the name to haul the whole problem out into the open. This heartened a majority of parents, willing to admit they have a mentally ill adult son or daughter and that the name of the illness is "schizophrenia." Today the organization has 170 members and the number is growing.

Murder Trials Begin

Three murder trials are scheduled to start in San Mateo County Superior Court in Redwood City Monday, which may be unusual but not unprecedented.

But what is unprecedented is that each of the three defendants is a woman, each charged with murder for allegedly killing a relative.

Dist. Atty. Keith C. Sorenson said never before have two women charged with homicide gone to trial the same week let alone three.

Catherina Hill, 33, is charged with killing her brother, Monroe Hill, during a family argument at her East Palo Alto home last March 3.

Antoinette Brown, 21, is accused of slaying her husband, Edward B. Brown, after she reportedly caught him with another woman. The killing occurred in Daly City last Aug. 31.

Phyllis Johnson, 25, is accused of fatally gunning down her husband, Donald, 24, last Nov. 16 outside an apartment complex in Redwood City.

Each of the women have pleaded innocent to the charges in their respective cases.

Whether all three trials get assigned as scheduled won't be determined until Monday, depending on the availability of courtrooms.

Pair Held In Thefts

Two San Francisco men accused of looting the warehouse of Airborne Airfreight at the San Francisco International Airport of two cases of china late Wednesday night were stopped by South San Francisco police at the C.H.P. truck scale on the Bayshore Freeway and taken into custody on charges of burglary and possession of stolen property.

Sheriff's Deputy Robert E. Messier said that Larry Joe Merritt, 28, and Arnold James Harris, 27, were spotted by employes of the nearby Emery Airfreight Co. carrying the two cases from the warehouse. The china, imported from Japan, was recovered in the rear of their vehicle, he said.

MDs Appear to Favor Keeping Chope Open

Triplets for Burl. Mother

A Burlingame mother of triplets born Thursday morning today was busily trying to remake her plans amid a deluge of well-wishing friends and phone calls.

Mrs. Byron Massey of 1608 Davis Drive, Burlingame, who gave birth to two boys and a girl by cesarean section at St. Luke's Hospital, San Francisco, said that she and her husband, a San Francisco attorney, had planned for twins.

"We are very delighted and surprised," she exclaimed. "I am so excited . . . I was overwhelmed."

"We had been all set — two cribs, two high chairs, and a beautiful twin stroller. Now, we'll have to add a side coach or trailer or something."

Mrs. Massey said that the event has made "February 3 the biggest day in this family.

"It is my husband's birthday and his mother's birthday," she said. "Definitely it will be our biggest day now. Imagine — three generations of birthdays in one day.'"

Byron, she said, was "totally surprised," although they had been expecting twins. "My husband has been here constantly," she said from her hospital bed. He has spent a lot of time in the nursery.

"I only got to see them once . . . when I was wheeled by. But last night they brought my daughter in and I got to hold her.

"Then I felt like a mother."

The Masseys have another son, Ryan, who will be 2 next month.

So many phone calls came in that Thursday afternoon she took the phone off the hook for several hours in order to rest, the mother said.

She admitted that she and her husband are a bit stymied on the third name.

"The little boy will be Darren Rogers and the girl, Andrea Louise, she said.

"We may name the middle boy 'Conor Jackson' — Jackson is my husband's name, although he goes by Jack."

Mrs. Massey said that among the offers of congratulation had been one from a Coastside mother of twins who has offered to do anything she can to help.

"We are going to have to rearrange everything in the house and get equipment," she said. "It will take some doing."

"I think our first move will be to get a bigger house," he said. "We have three bedrooms but one is on another floor. With all the children under two, we will need them all together."

Statement Is Issued; No Vote

Many, if not a majority, of physicians in San Mateo County favor keeping Chope Community Hospital functioning in its present capacity, according to Dr. Oscar W. Hills, president of the County Medical Society.

Hills issued a statement today following a closed meeting of the Medical Society Thursday night in San Mateo at which the question of Chope Hospital was debated before some 75 physicians.

No vote was taken, nor is one planned, according to Gene Taylor, executive director of the Medical Society.

However, Hills today issued a statement prepared following the meeting. It says:

"In the absence of Medi-Cal reform, many, if not a majority, of the physicians in San Mateo County would be concerned as to whether medical patients and the working poor could have adequate access to medical care if Chope Hospital is closed.

"Reasonable access to mainstream medical care is the primary concern.

"I respect the integrity of those who favor closing Chope, as well as those who favor keeping it open. Valid arguments can be presented on either side of the issue. This matter will be discussed further by the board of directors of the Medical Society."

Taylor said that physicians have "genuine concern" that the working poor might be denied access to medical care should Chope Hospital close. He defines working poor as those persons without health insurance whose income denies them access to Medi-Cal, but is not sufficient to pay for medical care. These persons are provided for at Chope, Taylor said.

As to Medi-Cal, physicians feel that its vagaries in denying access or retroactivity would throw a burden onto other hospitals without knowing how it would be handled, Taylor stated.

Papan Supports Chope

Assemblyman Louis J. Papan, D-Daly City, affirmed his support today for maintaining Chope Community Hospital in its present capacity.

In a letter to John M. Ward, chairman of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors, Papan says that, after substantial research by himself and his staff he has reached the conclusion that "it would not be in the best interests of the county residents, particularly North County residents, to close or even reduce Chope's health care facilities."

For many people, particularly the poor, Papan says in his letter, "Chope Hospital has represented a haven where the ill and injured can go, assured they will receive quality care and be accorded the dignity they deserve.

San Bruno Paramedic Service Proposal to Be Reviewed

By RICK SULLIVAN

A subcommittee of the San Bruno City Council will recommend to the full governing body at the end of this month that the city proceed with formation of its own paramedic service program.

Councilmen Tony Governale and Richard Griffith, members of the subcommittee, confirmed this week that officials of the city manager's office and the fire department will develop an emergency care service proposal to present to the council.

The councilmen said they will review that proposal with the staff Feb. 15, prior to presenting it to their colleagues.

"I think there is a consensus that there's some validity in spending tax funds for the purpose of paramedic service," said Griffith.

"We still have to nail down some facts and figures," Governale added, "but I'm hopeful we can come up with a plan within the next two weeks."

It is believed that a San Bruno paramedic proposal will closely resemble one initiated in South San Francisco early in 1975. In that city, firemen are trained as paramedics and respond to emergency calls.

They treat patients at the scene. Transportation of patients to hospitals is made by private ambulances.

If the council supports a paramedic plan, San Bruno would join South San Francisco as the only other city in the county providing municipally-financed emergency care service.

Currently, San Bruno and all other county cities, except South San Francisco, are provided paramedic service by a private company called Medevac. San Mateo County contracted with the Los Angeles-based firm last year.

Both Governale and Griffith have been critical of Medevac. They have consistently maintained that city firemen are more experienced in emergency care service than private ambulance drivers, know their cities better than outsiders do, and can respond to an emergency quicker than an ambulance.

Under the Medevac program, ambulances manned by trained paramedics respond to emergencies, treat and transport patients to a hospital.

Most of the service is billed to the patients and ranges from $110 to $190.

At a meeting of the council subcommittee last Tuesday, two reports — one by the city staff, the other by two city firemen — on the feasibility of initiating paramedic service were presented.

The proposal made by firemen Barry Franchi and Richard Havens was slightly more optimistic than the staff report. The firemen claimed that paramedic service could be implemented with no more than four new firemen and would cost residents some $75,000 to $80,000 per year.

Conclusions of the 32-page staff report, in part, are as follows:

• The annual operating cost of a properly instituted paramedic program would be a minimum of $170,000.

• Paramedics must treat seven or eight patients a day to maintain a high degree of professionalism. In San Bruno, it is estimated that fire department paramedics would treat about two patients a day. Therefore there is a great likelihood that 25 to 30 per cent of the paramedics would fail their annual recertification tests.

• To implement paramedic service and to assure that current levels of fire suppression service remain the same, seven new fire fighters would have to be hired.

• The annual cost of paramedic service by the county is $1.14 per capita. The cost of the same service by the city would be $4.41 per capita.

• The response time for Medevac and the San Bruno Fire Department will be the same for all non-simultaneous calls.

The report noted that start-up costs in the first year for municipal paramedic service would be about $200,000. The cost would drop to $170,000 the following year.

Such a new city service would require an 11-cent boost in the tax rate, the report noted.

Revenue generated from the rate hike would pay only for the paramedic service, not transportation.

Private ambulance companies would transport patients and bill patients for the service. The report noted that private ambulance companies charge between $78 and $143 for transporting a patient from San Bruno to Kaiser Hospital in South San Francisco.

Governale and Griffith said they believe that both reports carry valid points. They directed that a single report be developed from the information included in the two documents.

"There are many different points of view and vast differences in expenditures for paramedic service (between the firemen and the staff)," admitted Griffith.

Governale estimated that the final report will show that paramedic service would cost San Bruno between $100,000 and $110,000 per year.

Consumer Protection Council Set?

By DUANE SANDUL

A consumer protection council was created in San Mateo County three years ago.

Today "It's dormant, if not deceased, because of very little interest displayed by anyone other than myself," said H. Gene Smith, director of county weights and measures and head of the council, in an interview.

Other members of the council, representatives of the district attorney, environmental health and agriculture offices, have contrasting explanations for the council's apparent demise.

According to Smith, the Board of Supervisors formed the council "to coordinate consumer complaints and to avoid duplication and investigations.

"I got mad the last time (last month) I called a meeting because no one was particularly interested," Smith asserted. "I hope to interest George Riley, the county's new director of community services, in starting a new council with different membership."

John D. Garvic, chief of the district attorney's consumer fraud division, viewed that "last" meeting somewhat differently.

Garvic said that Smith renewed a request for the district attorney's office to become involved in mediating consumer complaints.

"I told him that the district attorney was not in a position to mediate because that would mean using the office's prestige to get a settlement and not doing anything criminally (in terms of filing charges)," Garvic said.

The attorney said that for the D.A. to serve as a mediator in consumer complaint cases not involving possible criminal or civil penalty cases would be an abuse of power.

"We don't want to use the power or authority of the office to get money for someone," Garvic said. "But when there is a criminal act or a violation of consumer protection civil laws, the district attorney is quick to respond."

Garvic also noted that the agriculture, weights and measures and environmental health departments each, from time to time, try to mediate complaints by voluntarily requesting the parties to attend an informal hearing or meeting.

Additionally, he said that small claims court is available for anyone wishing to try to settle a squabble involving less than $750.

"I don't think we need a superagency," said Agriculture Commissioner George Ginilo. "As far as for what we're mandated by law to control, we have very good control over."

Deputy Agricultural Commissioner Clarence M. Sill added, "If we start a super organization, it takes people a long time to learn about it, and it tends to cloud real issues. We get our complaints directly, and consumers also have vehicles such as the Better Business Bureau."

William Renner, Assistant Director of Environmental Health, said, "We thought that the council's mission had been accomplished because we know of each other's existence, and what each department does."

Smith, however, views it differently, and makes it clear that he's dissatisfied that the protection council has apparently dissolved.

"Before we did, the council achieve in the San Mateo County phone book directory, in 1975, the local numbers under consumer complaints and protection coordinators," Samith said proudly. The listing is on page 108 of the phone book, and provides a "who's who" and "where is he" of consumer protection and fraud agencies.

Smith said that Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Monterey and San Francisco each have consumer mediation agencies which investigate consumer complaints

Patient Costs Revealed

A report showing that a privately sponsored home for long-term, mentally ill patients is operating at a cost of $17 per day per patient, prompted the San Mateo County Mental Health Advisory Board to include a request for $40,000 in public funds in its current budget deliberations.

The board took action at its monthly meeting this week held at the San Mateo County Health and Welfare Building in San Mateo.

The $40,000 requested by the sponsoring Parents for Adult Schizophrenics, would permit operation of two homes for 12 patients, it was reported. At present, one home, called Mateo Lodge, is functioning in Redwood City.

All agreed there is a need for residences for the mentally ill. Sixty San Mateo county patients are now being kept at Napa State Hospital at an annual cost of $650,000 to the county, on the basis of $80 a day, it was reported. Many of them are there, because there is no residential facility for them in this county. Many others are housed in low-cost hotels, without supervision, according to Dr. Jackson Dillon, chief of the mental health division, region 3.

About 20 residential care homes have recently been closed, because operators could not make ends meet. Unreasonably stringent licensing provisions by the cities and state have added to costs, speakers said.

The unique, low-budget operation may be a pacesetter.

After the meeting, Mrs. Eve Oliphant, one of the founders of Parents of Adult Schizophrenics, said the low operating costs, in large part, are due to heavy volunteer participation. Parents of the patients lend all possible financial support as well as physical assistance,such as food shopping. Foundation grants are helping to fund costs.

Dr. Dillon estimated that more than 200 out of the present 1,300 mentally ill patients in San Mateo County, need longer term residential housing with supervision, as provided by Mateo Lodge. At present, however, he noted, the county does not pay for any residential care homes.

Board member, Mrs. Arden Weinberg questioned, "Aren't we supporting residential services elsewhere which cost more, such as Napa and the 2N ward at Chope?" She added, "What this brings up is the need to review our program to find out what it costs to develop facilities in the private sector which in this case is doing a better and cheaper job."

John Odenheimer, continuing care coordinator, noted that patients needs differ at different times. None of the present care supplied is superfluous, he said.

Dr. Lowell Streiker, executive director of the Mental Health Association of San Mateo County, warned the meeting that by 1980, national projections anticipate there will be two million more young adults diagnosed as schizophrenics. He said at present the large number of chronic patients are housed either in inhumane institutions or in facilities with little support which prevent them from making progress.

Similar support came from Dr. Paul Walker, in charge of training services and Charles Richmond, executive director of Caminar, another, larger residential facility. Dr. Walker noted many of the severely ill find it difficult to cope with structured programs which seek to spur them to "progress through the system."

George Louzensky of San Mateo, president of the Mateo Lodge board of directors and Parents of Adult Schizophrenics, told the meeting there is a long waiting list for residents at Mateo Lodge. When Canyon Hospital opens there will be a continuing need for ongoing outside care homes.

Dr. Walker stated that the creation of a homelike atmosphere may well contribute to helping the patient get well. He said many of the chronically ill, go through a revolving door system, and have not had a home, as such, for six to seven years.

Louzensky said the residents are in the 18 to 30 year age group, which is the most difficult to place.

SALES
I have seen many opportunities given to sales people throughout the years. I have considered myself as one who has looked at many, but this tops them all. Your commissions or earnings potential is unlimited if you can meet my requirements and that is that you have a proven sales record. This opportunity was given to me several years ago and I was sceptical when I read a similar ad from this company. My life has been one of extreme financial success since. Now, salary while you train. Top fringe benefits. Call 495-4777 for opportunities.
